Benedetta Barzini's "Long Time Ago in Milan" is a captivating memoir that transports readers to a bygone era, where the city of Milan was at the forefront of fashion, design, and cultural transformation.

Through Barzini's vivid storytelling and intimate recollections, we are privy to the world of iconic fashion houses such as Gucci, Pucci, and Versace, and the legendary designers who shaped them – Emilio Pucci, Salvatore Ferragamo, Ottavio Missoni, and Giorgio Armani.

But beyond the glamorous façade, Barzini offers a poignant glimpse into the personal lives of those who inhabited this vibrant scene. From scandalous affairs and bohemian gatherings to the complexities of love and loss, her writing captures the raw emotions and hidden dramas that unfolded behind closed doors.

Milan, in the 1960s and 70s, was a melting pot of creativity, where art, fashion, and design intertwined. Barzini introduces us to a cast of unforgettable characters, including artists Lucio Fontana and Piero Manzoni, photographer Richard Avedon, and writers such as Alberto Moravia and Pier Paolo Pasolini.

Through her personal encounters and observations, Barzini unravels the complexities of a city in transition, where tradition clashed with modernity and the old guard gave way to a new generation of rebels and innovators.

"Long Time Ago in Milan" is not merely a memoir; it is a love letter to a city and an era that will forever hold a special place in the collective imagination. Barzini's writing is imbued with a deep sense of nostalgia, but it is also a celebration of the transformative power of art, love, and the human spirit.

If you are a lover of fashion, history, or compelling personal stories, then "Long Time Ago in Milan" is a must-read. Benedetta Barzini's unique perspective and evocative prose will captivate you from the first page to the last, leaving you with a profound appreciation for the enduring legacy of a city that has forever influenced the world of style and culture.
