Financial management is a critical component of any organization, and public health and not-for-profit organizations are no exception. These organizations face unique challenges in managing their finances, including:

- Reliance on government funding and grants
- Limited revenue streams
- High levels of regulation
- Need to demonstrate accountability to donors and stakeholders

To meet these challenges, public health and not-for-profit organizations need to have a strong understanding of financial management principles.

This book provides a comprehensive overview of financial management for these organizations, covering topics such as:

- Financial planning and budgeting
- Accounting and financial reporting
- Internal controls and risk management
- Cost accounting and analysis
- Fundraising and grant management
- Financial statement analysis
- Auditing and compliance

This book is written in a clear and concise style, and it is packed with practical advice and examples. It is an essential resource for anyone who works in financial management for a public health or not-for-profit organization.
