The Story

First Lady Going Higher begins with Michelle Obama's childhood in Chicago. She was raised by a single mother in a working-class neighborhood. Despite the challenges she faced, Michelle was a bright and ambitious girl. She went on to attend Princeton University and Harvard Law School. After graduating from law school, Michelle worked as a lawyer and community organizer. She met her husband, Barack Obama, while they were both working at a law firm in Chicago.

In 2008, Barack Obama was elected President of the United States. Michelle became the First Lady of the United States. She used her platform to advocate for important causes, such as education, health care, and women's rights. She also became a role model for young people around the world.
