

Tenkara Radically Simple Ultralight Fly Fishing

Tenkara is a type of fly fishing that uses a long rod, a simple line, and a single fly. The rod is typically 10-13 feet long and is made of carbon fiber or bamboo. The line is usually made of nylon or fluorocarbon and is about the same length as the rod. The fly is typically a small, simple pattern that is tied on a small hook.

Tenkara is a very effective way to catch fish. The long rod allows you to cast the fly a long distance, and the simple line and fly make it easy to control the fly. Tenkara is also a very versatile technique that can be used to catch a variety of fish, including trout, bass, and panfish.

There are many reasons why you might want to try Tenkara fly fishing. Here are a few of the benefits:

If you are interested in trying Tenkara fly fishing, here are a few things you will need:

- A Tenkara rod. Tenkara rods are available in a variety of lengths and materials. For beginners, a 10-13 foot rod is a good option.
- A Tenkara line. Tenkara lines are available in a variety of lengths and materials. For beginners, a line that is about the same length as the rod is a good option.
- A Tenkara fly. Tenkara flies are available in a variety of patterns. For beginners, a simple, small pattern is a good option.
- Tippet. Tippet is a thin line that is used to connect the fly to the line. For beginners, a 3X or 4X tippet is a good option.
- A pair of nippers. Nippers are used to cut the tippet and to remove the fly from the hook.

Once you have your gear, you are ready to start fishing! Here are a few tips to get you started:

- Find a spot where you can cast the fly. Tenkara is best suited for small streams and rivers. Look for areas where there is a good current and where there are fish.
- Cast the fly upstream. Tenkara flies are designed to drift downstream with the current. Cast the fly upstream so that it will drift past the fish.
- Keep the fly in the water. Tenkara flies are designed to be fished in the water column. Keep the fly in the water as much as possible to give the fish a chance to see it.
- Set the hook. When you feel a fish bite, set the hook by raising the rod tip quickly.
- Land the fish. Once you have set the hook, land the fish by reeling it in.

Tenkara fly fishing is a great way to catch fish and enjoy the outdoors. It is a simple and effective technique that can be mastered by anyone. If you are looking for a new way to fish, give Tenkara a try!
