

Unlock Your Potential: Master the Art of Play with "Skills, Tactics, and Methods of Playing"

Author's Graft

Sometimes, authors "play with words" to entertain the reader.

Clever Sentence	Meaning in the Book	Why it is Entertaining
The jackhammers hit the road .	They left to go somewhere else. This is an idiom!	Jackhammers actually do hit roads to break them apart.
The bananas peeled out .	They left quickly. (This is an idiom that usually refers to cars screeching out of sight)	You have to peel a banana to eat it.
The baseball players struck out on their own .	They left town. (This is an idiom that means a person is ready to begin a new, independent life.)	Baseball players can strike out when they are up to bat.
The cows mooved on.	The cows moved to a different location.	When the author used the extra O in "mooved", he referred to the sound a cow makes.
The boots took a hike .	They left. (The idiom "Take a hike" means "Please leave now.")	Peel the banana!
